

Drive Through - Flash

I lost the office coin toss and have to drive out for the classic fast food of burgers and fries. I use the drive thru voice based ordering system and, after ordering for more than a dozen, I need to use the plastic. I use the Voice Command for “Any100” and present it.

The cashier extends a scanner scans, rings up $81.42, I'm approved, get the big bags of food, and I'm off to deliver lunch!

In drive through environments such as fast food and pharmacy the NC3 system offers the benefit of speed and convenience. There is no reaching for wallet or purse while wearing a seatbelt. The cost for the merchant is a hand scanner to meet the consumer part way or a scanner for longer distances that can be aimed and zoomed from inside the cashier's station.
