

NCC THE NO COMPROMISE CHARGE CARD

The Global Economy

The Charge Card

This little piece of plastic is central to most of us. Whether debit or credit, charge cards are replacing cash and checks in our daily lives. You can use them in person at the store or the gas station. You can use them over the telephone or over the internet. You can write them on a bill. You can get cash with them. They are a fundamental part of our national, international and global economic engine.

Our National Economy

The Consumer (that's you, the big green C), buys goods or services from the merchant (big blue M) using a charge card from a provider (big P).

You give the merchant your card, you get your goods or services. The merchant sends your charge to the provider and gets paid. The provider sends your bill to you and you send the provider money.

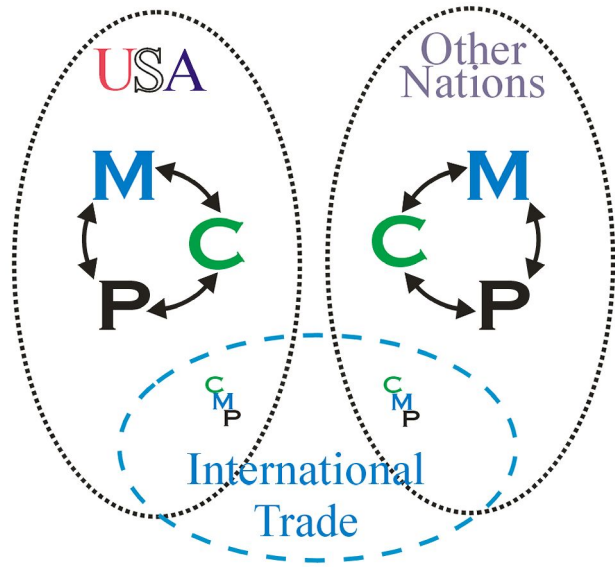

This goes on and on, keeping the economy moving.

Other National Economies

Other nations have their own economies with their own consumers, merchants and providers.

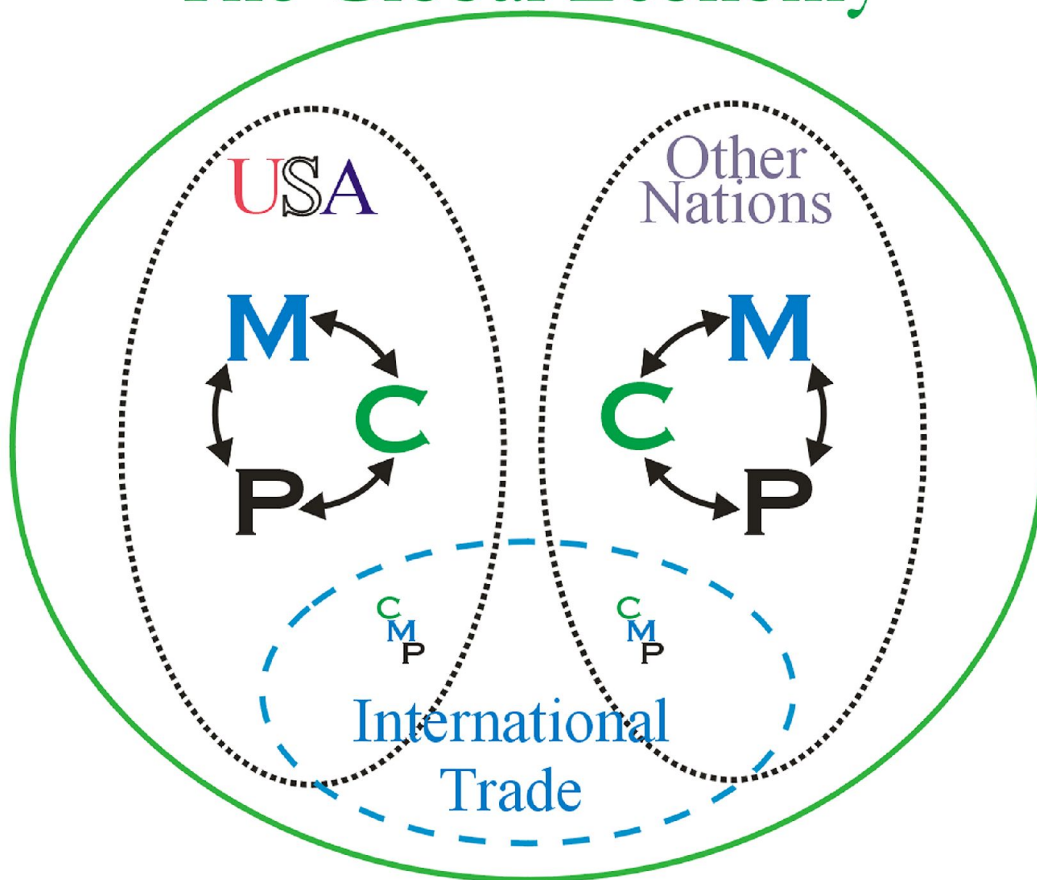

When a consumer or a merchant or a provider is in another nation we get international trade.

Global Economy

Add them all together and you have a global economy.

The Global Economy

The Problem

Sadly the great wealth of nations attracts criminals (red C with teeth). There are many of the littler version attacking the large numbers of consumers. Over 350 million consumers had their charge card information disclosed (follow References link on the last page).

The Global Economy

Fewer, but perhaps better prepared, crooks attack merchant repositories holding charge card information for millions of charge cards (follow References link on the last page).

Making it Profitless

By splitting the consumer identification and authorization from one plain text element into two separate elements and using advanced encryption, seamless and transparent to the consumer, easy to use in person, over the internet, or even with paper invoices:

the No Compromise Charge Card.
is poised to make charge card information theft
a profitless crime.

Also comes with great new features including Voice Command, Orders in Advance and more.
